

ABOUT THE EDITORS AND AUTHORS

The Firm

Morrison & Foerster LLP offers clients comprehensive global legal services in business and litigation through more than 1,000 lawyers in 15 offices around the world. Its cross-disciplinary Privacy and Data Security Practice Group includes more than 60 attorneys internationally. Group members have a wide range of expertise in disciplines such as corporate practice, financial services, labor, technology, and litigation, providing clients a broad and global perspective on privacy matters.

The Editors

Miriam Wugmeister is a partner in the New York office of Morrison & Foerster and is head of the Firm's Privacy and Data Security Practice Group. She counsels clients regarding the collection, use, and transfer of personal information as organizations seek to comply with U.S. and non-U.S. data protection laws. She regularly advises global companies on multinational privacy compliance efforts. Ms. Wugmeister also has significant experience in all areas of employment and labor law.

Christine Lyon is a partner in Morrison & Foerster's Palo Alto office, where her practice concentrates on employment and privacy law. She works extensively in the Firm's Privacy and Data Security Practice Group, with respect to both U.S. and international privacy issues. She has published articles and lectured on privacy, data security, and anti-spam legislation; assists clients in developing compliance strategies and internal governance policies; and advises clients in the areas of data protection and employee privacy.

Senior Editor and Contributing Author

Cynthia Rich is a senior international policy analyst in Morrison & Foerster's Washington, D.C., office, where she advises clients on privacy and transborder data transfers. Prior to joining the firm, Ms. Rich served as a senior international policy advisor at the U.S. Department of Commerce, where she worked to develop the groundbreaking safe harbor privacy arrangement between the U.S. and the European Union (EU).

Contributing Authors

Ann Bevitt is a partner in Morrison & Foerster's London office and head of the London office's Privacy and Employment & Labor Groups. She has extensive expertise advising clients on international data protection and privacy issues. Her practice area covers all aspects of employment law and privacy-related matters, both contentious and non-contentious, with a focus on outsourcing (information technology, best practices, and human resources), international reorganizations, and mergers and acquisitions.

Jingxiao Fang is a Senior Consultant in Morrison & Foerster's Beijing office whose practice covers privacy, data security, technology transactions, and private equity transactions. She has provided legal services to many domestic and multinational companies regarding compliance with privacy and data security-related regulatory requirements during data collection, maintenance, and transfer processes in China.

Daniel Levison is a partner in Morrison & Foerster's Tokyo office who focuses on commercial litigation and arbitration, including assisting clients who are involved in matters before Japanese courts and arbitration tribunals. He also advises on privacy and data protection issues and has assisted clients with Japanese privacy matters since the Japanese privacy legislation was first developed, integrating local advice with global privacy and data protection strategies.

Joanna Łopatowska is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's Brussels office and is qualified to practice law in Poland. Dr. Łopatowska advises clients regarding their obligations under domestic and international privacy and data security laws.

She assists clients regarding compliance with Polish and pan-European data protection laws, including in relation to registration with data protection authorities, privacy policies and procedures, data breach, and cross-border data transfers.

Paul McKenzie is Managing Partner of Morrison & Foerster's Beijing office. His practice focuses on a broad range of corporate transactions and regulatory compliance matters in China. He advises international and Chinese corporations on a diverse range of matters, including privacy and data security, acquisitions and divestitures, real estate development projects, resource development projects, strategies for licensing and distribution of software products, structures for sale and distribution activities in China, and regulatory compliance strategies.

Gordon Milner is a partner in Morrison & Foerster's Hong Kong office. He specializes in advising on intellectual property, licensing, outsourcing, and technology transactions. He has particular expertise in respect of cross-border commercial technology transactions in Asia and privacy and data security and has substantial experience providing specialist intellectual property, regulatory, and operational technology law advice to clients in China.

Karin Retzer is Of Counsel in Morrison & Foerster's Brussels office, where she focuses on the legal aspects of electronic e-commerce and data protection, technology licensing, and intellectual property law. She is a German qualified lawyer and she manages worldwide privacy and data security projects and advises clients on German and global data processing, data retention obligations, direct marketing, and employee monitoring issues.

Toshihiro So is Of Counsel in the Tokyo office of Morrison & Foerster. He represents both Japanese and non-Japanese clients on a wide range of general corporate, labor & employment, privacy, civil litigation, real estate, and securities-related matters. Mr. So has extensive experience advising multinational organizations on privacy and employment issues in Japan.

Nathan Taylor is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's Washington, D.C., office. His practice focuses on consumer financial services Morrison & Foerster's and the regulation of financial institutions, in particular in relation to privacy and data security issues, including compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act privacy and security requirements, and state security breach notification and security freeze statutes.

Timothy Verrall is Of Counsel with Morrison & Foerster's Northern Virginia office, where he advises a broad range of clients on the tax, labor, and securities aspects of employee benefit programs. He also has substantial experience dealing with issues arising under the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (COBRA) and the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA), including the HIPAA privacy, security, and transaction standards rules.

Marian Waldmann is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's New York office. Her practice focuses on the areas of privacy and data security and labor and employment. She works on US and global data protection matters and regularly advises clients on cutting edge employment and privacy issues.

Acknowledgements

The Firm greatly acknowledges the contributions of the following individuals who contributed in a variety of ways to the success of this book:

Eric Dickinson is an associate based in Morrison & Foerster's Hong Kong office, where he advises clients on corporate and commercial transactions, focusing primarily on matters involving life science, cleantech, and information technology businesses.

Anna Ferrari is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's Palo Alto office. Her primary areas of practice, employment and privacy law, involve counseling and transactional work as well as litigation. She also maintains an active pro bono practice.

Susy Hassan is in Morrison & Foerster's Palo Alto office. She practices in the Employment and Labor Group where she assists employers in all areas of employment litigation, including discrimination, harassment, violation of privacy, wage-and-hour law, and wrongful termination. In addition, Ms. Hassan's practice includes drafting employee handbooks, personnel policies, separation agreements, and employment agreements as well as counseling clients on a variety of non-litigation employment matters.

Shai Kalansky is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's New York office. His practice focuses on general corporate and transactional matters including cross-border mergers and acquisitions. Mr. Kalansky also counsels employers regarding employment agreements, personnel policies, and discrimination claims before state and federal agencies.

Julie O'Neill is Of Counsel in Morrison & Foerster's Washington, D.C., office. She counsels clients in many areas of privacy and consumer protection law, including the creation of compliance programs. She also reviews online and offline advertising, promotions, and all forms of direct marketing, and assists with competitor and regulator challenges.

Naghmeh Ordikhani is an associate in Morrison & Foerster's Palo Alto office, where she is a member of the Employment and Labor Practice Group. Ms. Ordikhani's practice encompasses all areas of employment law, including discrimination, harassment, wage-and-hour law, and wrongful termination.

Katharine Pauley is a policy analyst in Morrison & Foerster's Washington, D.C. office, and is a member of the firm's Privacy and Data Security Practice. She has more than 20 years' experience working on federal and state privacy and related legislative and regulatory issues.

Kimberly Strawbridge Robinson is in Morrison & Foerster's Washington, D.C. office and a member of the firm's Privacy and Data Security Group. Ms. Robinson counsels companies on privacy, advertising, and direct marketing compliance. This includes compliance with COPPA, Section 5 of the FTC Act as it relates to advertising, privacy, online behavioral advertising, and substantive information security, and compliance with international privacy laws. She also advises clients on compliance with laws regulating email marketing, SMS messaging, and telemarketing.

Other Contributors

Sakari Aalto is a partner in the firm Merilampi Attorneys Ltd. in Tampere, Finland. Mr. Aalto specializes in transactions, disputes and regulatory issues involving the different aspects of IT, telecommunications, technology and intellectual property. He is regularly involved in negotiations on commercialization arrangements, sourcing transactions, patent, copyright and trademark licensing, and the settlement of related disputes. He also frequently represents companies in disputes in these fields as well as advises clients on data protection matters.

Diana Álvarez recently moved to American Tower Corporation as Corporate Legal Manager in Mexico, after four years as the head of intellectual property at the Mexican law firm Galicia Abogados, S.C. Diana advises domestic and international clients on intellectual property, corporate, and privacy law, including employees' rights regarding privacy matters as well as compliance with the recent Mexican legislation on personal data protection. Her practice also includes counseling clients on the application of internal and global policies that involve personal data processing.

Olivier Angotti is an associate in the firm of JeantetAssociés in Paris, France. On a regular basis, he advises international clients on data protection issues, with a focus on their criminal law aspects, from a French employment law perspective. Mr. Angotti also represents both French and foreign firms in litigation arising from noncompliance with employees' and employee representatives' privacy rights and data protection regulations.

Lisa Carty is an associate in the firm of Blake, Cassels & Graydon LLP in Toronto, Canada. Ms. Carty assists employers in all areas of labour and employment law, and provides advice on employment standards, human rights, labour relations, privacy and data protection, wrongful dismissal and other employment litigation. Ms. Carty also advises clients on workplace policies, including policies related to privacy and data protection. Ms. Carty has experience assisting with due diligence and providing advice in connection with the labour and employment aspects of corporate transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, dispositions, and reorganizations.

Hector R. Kuri Quijano is a partner with the Mexican firm of Galicia Abogados, S.C. in Mexico City. Mr. Kuri's practice focuses on local and cross border mergers and acquisitions, project finance and infrastructure, capital markets, corporate and debt restructuring, general corporate matters and privacy law. Mr. Kuri has advised both financial entities as well as sponsors in the construction and financing of several projects, such as airports, water treatment plants, power projects, subway systems and open seas platforms, as well as other major infrastructure projects. Regarding merger and acquisitions, Mr. Kuri has advised both purchasers and sellers in the acquisition of entities and the formation of joint ventures involved in several markets such as banking, media, industrial, consumer products, entertainment and retail, among others, including with respect to employee data transfer and privacy law issues that arise in the context of such transactions.

Pablo Palazzi is an expert on data protection law in Latin America. He practices law at Allende & Brea in Buenos Aires, Argentina where he heads the IP & IT department. He is member of the New York and Buenos Aires Bar. He drafted the Data Protection Bill of the City of Buenos Aires (currently law 1845) and its Regulations and he has been actively involved in the drafting of the amendment to the computer crimes law. He also has collaborated representing the Ministry of Economy in the drafting of the digital signature bill and the data protection act of Argentina and its regulations. He is member of the Editorial Board of Data-protectionreview.eu and the International Review of Data Protection (Oxford Univ. Press) and a member of the Advisory Board of Privacy International.

Isabelle Pontal is a senior associate in the firm of JeantetAssociés in Paris, France. With more than 15 years of practice in employment law, she has extensive expertise in advising clients on issues arising from company restructurings, with a focus on collective redundancy exercises, compliance issues, and employees' data protection. Mrs. Pontal assists both French and foreign firms with due diligence exercises and subsequent negotiation over employment-related issues in the merger and acquisition context.

Connie Reeve is a senior partner with the Canadian firm of Blake Cassels & Graydon LLP in Toronto, Canada. With more than 25 years of practice in litigation and employment law, she has advised international and domestic clients on wide range of employment, human rights, labor and privacy law issues, including on achieving compliance with Canadian privacy legislation. She regularly provides advice on employment law issues as they arise in cross-border mergers and acquisitions and corporate restructurings, including with respect to employee data transfer and privacy law issues that arise in the context of such transactions.

Eduardo Salomão Neto is a partner in the firm of Levy & Salomão Advogados in São Paulo, Brazil. Levy & Salomão Advogados is a full-service business law firm that was founded in 1989 to serve the needs of both Brazilian and foreign clients in Brazil. Levy & Salomão attorneys combine solid academic backgrounds with substantial experience not only in the practice of law, but also in finance, capital markets, government and international business and accounting. Levy & Salomão client base is comprised primarily of transnational corporations and Brazilian corporate groups that require legal counsel on diverse aspects of law. Many of the firm's professionals have previously worked for foreign law firms in the United States and in Europe, and several are licensed to practice law in foreign jurisdictions.

The Editors also would like to recognize the contributions of the following individuals to prior editions of this book:

Amina Adam
Teresa Basile
Suzanne Horne
Michiko Ito
Charles Kennedy
Thomas Scanlon
Dr. Jyn Schultze-Melling