

Preface

The Sixth Edition of How Arbitration Works began the process of restructuring and expanding the text of this most authoritative treatise on labor arbitration. The present Supplement continues this project by not only reporting on developments that have occurred since publication of the Main Edition, but also by adding 14 new topics.

The 2010 Supplement would not have been possible without the invaluable suggestions and comments of the Associate Editors, Patrick M. Sanders, of Lathrop & Gage, the former employer co-chair of the Committee on ADR in Labor & Employment Law, and Michelle T. Sullivan, of Allotta, Farley & Widman, the union co-chair of the committee. Diana L. Robinson and Amy L. Zawacki, also of Allotta, Farley & Widman, provided suggestions and comments on Chapters 14 and 16, as indicated in the Board of Editors.

As with the Sixth Edition and earlier supplement, the criticism of readers and suggestions for the next edition are invited and welcomed.

I would like to thank the American Bar Association, the Section of Labor and Employment Law, and the ADR committee for giving me the opportunity to edit the 2010 supplement.

I would also like to thank Professor Alan Miles Ruben, editor-in-chief of the 2008 Supplement, upon which this 2010 Cumulative Supplement is built. His hard work and efforts have made my experience updating the material a much easier one.

Finally, I would like to thank the arbitrators and advocates who agree to submit their awards for publication for the edification of others in the field and the development of the law of labor arbitration.
