

About the Author

David Didier Johnson is a partner in the San Francisco office of Michelman & Robinson, where he practices in the firm's Health Care Department. David represents health plans and health care providers in managed care disputes and coverage class actions, as well as before federal and state agencies on licensing, program participation, rate setting, MLR, actuarial accounting, solvency, taxation and compliance issues. A significant amount of his practice concerns health care discrimination law issues involving ACA Section 1557, the Americans with Disabilities Act, MHPAEA and state mental health parity acts.

David has authored and co-authored chapters in the American Bar Association treatise, Managed Care Litigation, and the Health Law Handbook and has contributed articles to Bloomberg BNA's Health Care Policy Report, California Health Law News, U.C. Davis Business Law Journal, Los Angeles Daily Journal, Los Angeles Lawyer, Health Law Perspectives and many other journals. He is a frequent speaker on health care law at conferences throughout the United States, and is a past Chair of the California State Bar Health Law Committee.

Prior to his career as a lawyer, David was a Certified Public Accountant, focusing on financial statement audits, financial analysis and insurance accounting. He continues to work with health plans and related trade associations to develop and advise on statutory accounting methodologies and advocate before the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) and federal regulators.

David earned a J.D. from the University of Texas at Austin School of Law. He graduated law school with honors, was elected to the Order of the Coif, and was awarded the American Bankruptcy Institute Medal of Excellence. David was an undergraduate at Arizona State University, where received a B.S. in Accounting, magna cum laude.
